

Indigenous Business Gathering

Corporate Partners and Third Parties

Athabasca Basin Development

"We look forward to the Indigenous Business Gathering every year. As an Indigenous investment company, we are always looking for opportunities to invest in strong businesses in order to grow wealth for our communities. The IBG is a great networking event and a place to connect business opportunities with Indigenous organizations like ours, and we see it as a positive trend that the event has been growing every year."

Geoff Gay, Chief Executive Officer

Métis Nation-Saskatchewan

"We know how important it is to work with our partners to advance the growth of Métis and First Nations entrepreneurialism in this province. The MN-S government has an increasing database of Métis-owned businesses, and this Indigenous Business Gathering is an important networking opportunity for them to connect with other complementary owners. As MN-S invests in our communities, we partner with First Nations and locals to achieve successful outcomes for our Métis citizens. When Indigenous communities succeed, Saskatchewan wins."

Glen McCallum, President

Polar Oils

"For 43 years, Polar Oils has been a grassroots leader in creating value and ensuring reliable, equitable access to fuel products for our First Nation partners. As a proudly Indigenous-owned company, we are committed to strengthening economic opportunities. That is why we proudly support the Indigenous Business Gathering as a key opportunity to connect with industry leaders, strengthen partnerships, and showcase the impact of Indigenous businesses in the energy sector."

Dylon Gould, Manager
Saskatoon Tribal Council

"Events like this are part of working towards reconciliation in business and economic development – Saskatchewan's future is brighter for everyone when we have more First Nations involvement in building livelihoods for our people."

Mark Arcand, Tribal Chief

STC Industrial Group

"We're excited to attend the Indigenous Business Gathering 2025, connecting with industry leaders, partners, and communities to strengthen opportunities for our Nation owned businesses. This is a one-of-a-kind event here in Saskatchewan that continues to grow every year, and we're proud to be there once again."

Shaun Howdle, President and Chief Executive Officer

Synergy Construction Ltd.

"Our company has a genuine commitment to fostering community and opening doors for others. We feel that the Indigenous Business Gathering aligns perfectly with our values. This event offers conversations that could lead to a meaningful partnership, a collaboration, as well as other opportunities for Indigenous and Non-Indigenous businesses alike."
